REGENCY MORTGAGE, et al., Defendants. No. 99-CV-0087. United States District Court, E.D. Wisconsin. November 21, 2000. Joseph Minuzzi, Milwaukee, WI, Pro se. Donald D. Steck, Nadine Taub, Godfrey & Kahn, S.C., Milwaukee, WI, for defendants. *756 DECISION AND ORDER RANDA, District Judge. Before the Court is plaintiff's motions for consolidation and pauper status, defendants' motion to dismiss, and defendant Mary Guerriero's motion to dismiss. For the reasons that follow, the Court grants defendants' motion to dismiss, denies plaintiff's motions for consolidation and pauper status, and dismisses this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B). BACKGROUND This matter arises out of a foreclosure action initiated in Milwaukee County Circuit Court in 1999. As part of the foreclosure action, defendants Mary Guerriero and Regency Mortgage were awarded possession of plaintiff's Milwaukee home on August 29, 1999. As is the case for many federal courts, the Clerk's Office of this Court does not accept nor record "pleadings" filed by Wisconsin state prisoners. Instead, the Court, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(d), certifies as plaintiffs pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(2) those prisoners who cannot afford to pay the filing fee or are unable to prepay the filing fee. Section 1915(a)(2) provides in pertinent part: (a) Any court of the United States may authorize the commencement, prosecution or defense of any suit, action or proceeding, civil or criminal, or appeal therein, without prepayment of fees or security therefor, by a person who submits an affidavit that includes a statement of all assets such prisoner possesses that the

Mr. Steinbeck, 37, a New Canaan resident and a salesman at a car dealership, has the mild form of autism and was diagnosed in 2009. His parents, Deborah and Scott Steinbeck, adopted him with his older brother, Kent, when they were 17 and 17, respectively. Mr. Steinbeck, who now works as a financial planner, is one of thousands of children who are diagnosed with autism every year. Yet often they aren't identified until they are an older child or a teenager. Some of those children, like Mr. Steinbeck, face discrimination at school, where they may be bullied or mocked. Some face challenges interacting with others, whether it is at home or in an adult's workplace.A politically radical group calling itself "AiR" (alliance for rebellion) is threatening a "popular uprising" to set in motion a "new social order" if it fails to gain seats in Parliament in the upcoming election. The group is represented by Kim Jong Un on the list of candidates, the first time the North Korean leader has openly acknowledged the b7e8fdf5c8

I am trying to write a kind of watchdog/service in a complex multi-threaded program that checks every 10 seconds if the program is up. I am trying to do this using Linux signals and a while loop that checks if the process is running by giving a program a signal of "SIGUSR1" and reading it's PID. If the PID is 0 then the program is dead. This works fine but it only tells me if the program is dead, not if it is alive and is locked. I don't know how to tell if the program is locked. What is happening to it if I don't know if it is locked? The only thing I can think of is to kill the process with SIGTERM and when it finishes and does not respond to a SIGTSTP, kill it with SIGKILL. I'm not sure if I can use "sigterm" or I should use a different signal. Thanks EDIT: Thanks for the responses. I have found the answer to my question. My problem was that I was reading the daemon's PID from the output of ps -aux, which of course didn't give me the PID. Since the daemon is not running as root, I had to add -p to ps to get the process's PID and then read it from /proc/PID/stat. If you don't do that then you get some error message when the process is in the background that its not a user space process which confuses you. A: If you read the PID from the output of ps -aux or /proc/PID/stat, you will only get the PID of the init process. For any other processes, you will get an error message about it being a user space process. You can test this by manually starting a process and checking whether you get the error message or not.
